TO THE PEOPLE OF WEST TENNESSEE.

Purdy, Saturday, June 15th.
Bolivar, Monday, June 17th.
Jackson, Tuesday, June 18th.

Dresden, Saturday, June 22d.

Papers of the district are requested to publish the above list of appointments.

The report that the President is suffering from disease of the kidneys, is denied.

The Richmond Times newspaper was sold at auction last Saturday. It was bought by the Dispatch, good will without material, for $3,200.

Some of the citizens of Atlanta are endeavoring to organize a party in opposition to the "Sherman bill." General Pope has given his consent to a meeting being held for that purpose.

Messrs. Tanner and McWilliams, who were under arrest at Huntsville, for the alleged blacking of Bingham, have been released from custody by order of the District Commander.

Robert F. Mercer, one of the proprietors of the Nashville Press and Times, died on Tuesday night at twelve o'clock, at the residence of his brother, in that city, in the twenty-first year of his age.

The Daily Advertiser is the name of a new paper just started at Jackson, Mississippi, by McGill, Hines & Porter. The second number has reached us. It is small but neatly gotten up and printed.

There is a discussion going on between Rev. F. X. Leray and Bishop Green, of Mississippi, in relation to some assertions which the latter has made in regard to certain doctrinal points alleged to be held by the Romish church.

The Government is about to send out a party to explore Walrussia, in the interest of science and the Treasury. After having paid seven millions for this territory, says the New York Tribune, it will be a lasting disgrace if we continue to know nothing about it.

Multitudes of small lizards have been found in the water pipes of Detroit. The discovery has created much agitation among the people. All the men, women, and children are supposed to have at least a dozen little saurians apiece in their stomachs.

The woman killed by King, in Nineteenth street, New York, the other day, proves to have been his mistress, not his wife. He declared in a letter that none of his relations would help him, that he could get no employment, and that he shot the girl to prevent her returning to the life of shame which she was leading in the Broadway Concert Saloon when he found her.

At a freedmen's meeting in Greenville, Mississippi, a few days ago William Murphy, a sensible colored man defined his position in the following style which is a platform good for white or black: "I am in favor of all hands going to work and making plenty to eat, and keep less noise, then all will be right. I tell you the South is the greatest country in the world. I now propose three cheers for the South."

A young lady in St. Louis has been suffering for several years past from symptoms of mercurial poisoning. For a long time no cause could be ascertained, but a dentist, finding that she had her teeth filled with mercurial amalgam, came to the conclusion that the chlorine contained in her saliva might have generated corrosive sublimate. He therefore removed the amalgam and put in gold. She has since recovered her health.

There was a bit of romance connected with the great Derby race in England, which took place a fortnight ago. A young lady was engaged to be married to Mr. Chaplin, but twenty-four hours before the proposed wedding, eloped with the Marquis of Hastings. At the Derby Mr. Chaplin's horse won, and the Marquis of Hastings in consequence lost £120,000—nearly three quarters of a million dollars currency. The Marquis is now "hard up," and Mr. Chaplin has had his revenge.

The Vicksburg Times has been sold to Messrs. Shannon and R. E. Paxton. We regret the retirement of our gallant young friend, Colonel Manlove, from the editorial chair, for he has developed a talent, and pursued a manly and independent course, which makes him an ornament to the profession. At the same time we congratulate the proprietors upon their fortunate choice of Colonel W. H. McCardle as his successor. We welcome the Colonel back to the field in which before he reaped so much of distinction and honor.

We learn from the New Orleans Crescent of Sunday that a meeting took place Saturday evening at the Lake, near the terminus of the old Jefferson railroad, between Messrs. Frank Amos and J. M. Coffey, of this city. The weapons used were revolvers, and the distance fifteen paces, the parties approaching each other while firing. Mr. Coffey's pistol missed the three times, while his opponent fired all of his shots, the last of which wounded Mr. Coffey in the abdomen. The affair was then declared satisfactorily adjusted. The wound inflicted is not of a very dangerous character.

Mr. John Antrim, of Antrim & Street, doing business on Main street in St. Louis, has fallen heir to a very handsome fortune in Ireland, consisting of the Antrim estate, the property of the late Earl of Antrim, situated in the county of Antrim, the most northern county of Ireland. It is one of the oldest families in Ireland, its genealogy being traceable back for several hundred years, and supported by large wealth. The value of this property left by the Earl is estimated at seven millions pounds sterling, or $35,000,000 in gold.

The New York Home Journal publishes the following list of marriage engagements of its city people: Miss Keller, daughter of the celebrated lawyer, is engaged to Mr. Livingston Beekman, of this city. A daughter of the late Gustavus Conover, the skilful architect, is engaged to Mr. Kalbfleisch, son of the ex-mayor of Brooklyn. Miss Kate Reuss, called the prettiest young lady in Baltimore, is engaged to Mr. Eugene Baldwin, of that city; Mr. Eugene Jerome, nephew of Leonard W. Jerome, is engaged to Miss Lena Van Schlot, of Chicago.

Heliotypography is about to be practically introduced in this country. If one half that is claimed for it be true, its utility will soon be largely availed of, in the arts as well as by business people. It is certain that by means of it maps, wood engravings, ornamental cards, music, outlines, letterpress, etc., can be reproduced on solid plates, from which hundreds of thousands of copies can be printed. Some of the work which has already been done is really astonishing; and the process possesses the peculiar merit that, while it gives the exact fac simile of the thing to be copied, it will also diminish or enlarge the size of the original to any extent that may be desired. It is, altogether, a remarkable invention.

The United States District Court, at Louisville, Judge Ballard presiding, remanded to the custody of the Colonel of the 2d United States Infantry Henry Stewart, private of that regiment, who alleged unlawful enlistment, being enrolled while intoxicated. Stewart had been brought before the Court on a writ of habeas corpus.

A Methodist minister named Slater, living near Brookfield, Missouri, is under arrest on the charge of poisoning his wife. The woman had been greatly abused by her husband, and poisoned. Her sister was living in the family, and Slater's object is supposed to have been to marry her, after getting rid of his wife.

The El Comercio, of Matamoros, of 7th instant, gives the following extracts, from a letter dated Monterey, June 2d: Miramon has died of fever, which attacked him after he was wounded at Queretaro. Castillo, Mejia and others had been shot, according to a letter from a creditable person in San Luis. The most profound silence prevailed as to what will be done with Maximilian. The chief functionaries talk both ways. It has been said the City of Mexico was taken by the Liberals at the close of May. El Mexicano, an Imperialist paper, published at Brownsville, pronounces Maximilian's proclamation a forgery, and says it originated with burlesque papers.

The National Intelligencer of Thursday, confirming the dispatches forwarded on Tuesday night, says that the Cabinet at its meeting on that day, decided that the military officers in command of the districts into which the ten unrepresented States are divided, have no power to remove civil officers deriving their authority from State governments as now organized. It is added significantly by the Intelligencer that it need hardly be suggested the issuing of orders replacing the deposed officers which may become necessary as a consequence of this decision of the Government, would be no good ground for application on the part of General Sheridan to be relieved from the position he holds, much less would it warrant the interference that the Administration contemplates or desires his removal for his efforts.

John M. Wiphington, Mayor of Newbern, North Carolina, declines to take the oath prescribed by General Sickles.

A nervous divine who was but a so and so preacher, being called upon accidentally for a sermon, asked a friend what he should preach about, to which the other replied, "About five minutes."

One hour twenty minutes and fifty seconds separated the first and last boat.

A terrible vengeance was visited upon two negroes at Wyandotte, Kansas, Thursday. They were charged with the murder of a farmer named Wm. Mann, and lodged in jail. A mob took them out to hang them, the rope broke though, and the unfortunate men were shot to pieces in the court yard. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of "hung by a mob." It is now believed that the men were innocent, and that the ringleaders of the mob were the real criminals.

Reports from Colorado shows the Indians are committing great depredations, killing men and women, stampeding cattle, robbing the mails, cutting the telegraph wires, and frightening the people so much that dozens of ranches are being deserted. The people are petitioning the President for the aid which they say General Sherman does not furnish, he having left the mail route entirely unprotected.

We learn from the Dyersburg Gazette that on Wednesday evening of last week, young Mr. Jones, of that county, went to a negro in his father's employ to expostulate with him upon the use of firearms. Upon knocking at the door the negro put his gun through a crack and shot him dead. A party of citizens went in search of the murderer, with what result we have not been informed.

The Boston Traveler recalls the interesting historical fact that Maximilian is the most respectable member of one of the most ancient of the reigning houses of the old world, a house that was at the head of the Holy Roman Empire long before Mexico had been heard of among Christians, and which ruled over Mexico for almost two centuries, from the time that Cortez conquered it for Charles I, (V of Germany,) in 1521, to the death of Charles II, in 1700.

The Waco Register learns from Hillsboro that Sam. M. Matlock and M. H. Alexander, of the murderers of Judge Doyle and son, in Hill county, were "found hanging to a limb of a pecan tree, within a few hundred yards of the graves of their victims." "The murderers had escaped jail at Austin, come up through Hill county, and were apprehended and taken before Mrs. Doyle, who recognized them to be the murderers of her husband and son." Whereupon they were lynched by the friends of the murdered men.

Erroneous Statement Concerning the Mississippian—Letter from the Editor.

JACKSON, MISSISSIPPI, May 20, 1867.

To the Editor of the New Orleans Picayune:

SIR: I notice in the Picayune of the 28th instant, the following editorial announcement:

"The Mississippian, one of the oldest, and for a long period, the leading paper in Mississippi, has ceased to exist. Colonel E. M. Yerger announces that he is hereafter to be associated as editor, with Mr. Swords as manager, in the publication of the Vicksburg Herald."

The announcement that the Mississippian had "ceased to exist" is without foundation, and if such intelligence has reached you it originated in inexcusable ignorance or malicious motives."

The Mississippian has not "ceased to exist," but on the contrary has extended its broad wings over a wider field, having embraced the largely circulated journal known as the Vicksburg Herald, and will appear about the 5th proximo as the Mississippian and Daily Vicksburg Herald.

It may not be improper to add, in justice to subscribers and advertisers, that there is not the slightest probability of the demise of the journal whose obituary you have so hastily essayed to write; but if the largest circulation perhaps of any paper in the Southwest, and very extensive patronage otherwise, is any evidence of dissolution, the Mississippian has not long to live. I may be permitted to add that all my contracts for advertisements and subscriptions will be faithfully fulfilled, with the additional benefit to advertisers of a largely increased circulation.

Professional courtesy will at once suggest to you the propriety of this letter appearing in your editorial columns in quite as prominent a place as the erroneous announcement alluded to.

Respectfully, E. M. YERGER.

Important Decision.

A late number of the New Orleans Crescent has the important information of a decision by the Supreme Court, which may interest our own merchants. The case was that of the State of Louisiana vs. S. H. Kennedy & Co., appealed from the Sixth District Court, and has been before the appellate court several months. Messrs. Kennedy & Co. were sued for a certain sum due by them for tax on gross sales in their house. They resisted payment of the tax on the ground that it was unconstitutional, and the lower court held that it was unconstitutional. The State appealed, and the Supreme Court affirmed the decision of Judge Duplantier.

It is estimated that if the tax had been decided to have been Constitutionally imposed, there would have been about seven hundred thousand dollars collected into the State Treasury within the next sixty days. As it is the State will loose that sum, and some six or seven hundred thousand dollars of the tax having already been paid, of course the amount will have to be refunded to the parties who have paid it. As the State cannot be sued, however, the restitution can only be had by an act of the Legislature.

Bachelor's Bulletin.

A New York Sunday paper publishes a bachelors' bulletin, for the information of the young ladies. Here are a few specimens:

Hamilton Fish, Jr., East Twenty Second street, son of Ex-Governor Fish. He is a tall and gawky looking fellow of about twenty-three. Thinks himself a lady killer, but has not quite broken the young lady's heart in East Twenty Second street. Income five thousand dollars.

Another is thus photographed:

John Alaire Rockwell, resides at the Brevoort House, considered very handsome in the dark. Thought to be a dangerous youth on account of his splendid baritone voice and natural teeth. One of the best amateur billiard players in town. Has an income, as per last internal revenue, of seventeen thousand dollars.

And here we have a third:

Dr. B. A. Clements, of Greenwich Avenue, is about forty years of age, tall, good looking, and very fond of the ladies; prefers widows. Heavy on the "Black Crook," and was never known to go back on his whisky. Worth twenty thousand dollars.

Mr. Stevens' Confession Scheme.

The Springfield Republican, speaking of the recent letter of Thaddeus Stevens, says:

We know now exactly what Thad. Stevens means by a "mild confession." He wants enough to pay for the damage done to his iron works and the hay and fencing stuff used up by the rebels in Pennsylvania. Congress, for two sessions, has been "indifferent to these sufferings," and the irascible Pennsylvanian has been chafing and fretting all the while, but never before disclosed the dimensions of his grievance. Let Mr. Stevens make out his bill for damages, and something shall be done about it.

THE FENIAN TRIALS IN IRELAND.

Speech of Captain McClure.

From the Pall Mall Gazette, May 27.]

Whatever may be the fate of the Fenian ringleaders, it is impossible not to be struck by the manliness and dignity of their demeanor in their present strait. The following is the speech delivered by Captain McClure, after his conviction, when called upon by the judge to say why sentence should not be passed upon him:

MY LORDS—In answer to the question as to why the sentence of the court should not be passed upon me, I would desire to make a few remarks in relation to my late exertions on behalf of the suffering people of this country in aiding them in the earnest endeavors to obtain the independence of their native land. Though not born on the soil of Ireland, my parents were; and from history and the traditions of the fireside I became conversant with this country's miseries from my earliest childhood; and as the human breast possesses those God like attributes which make men feel for suffering mankind, I felt for Ireland's wrongs and for her moral degradation, and I felt that I should assist her people in their attempt to right those wrongs and raise her from degradation. I shall not now state to what cause I attribute the failure of the late insurrectionary movement; nor shall I express a sorrow I do not feel with regard to my own conduct. I am fully satisfied of the righteousness of my every act in connection with the late revolutionary movement, having been actuated alone by a holy desire to assist in the emancipation of an enslaved but generous people. It affords me more pleasure to have acted as I have done in behalf of the Irish people, than any event that has occurred to me during my eventful though youthful existence. I would wish to be distinctly understood—and I say it here—standing on the brink of an early grave—that I am no fillibuster, no freebooter. I came to this country with no personal object to gain—with no desire to my own advancement. I came here solely out of love of Ireland and sympathy for her people. If I have forfeited my life for having done so, I am ready to abide the issue. If my devotion to an opprossed people be a crime, I am willing to receive the penalty of that crime, knowing, as I do, that what I done was in behalf of a people who will appreciate and honor a man, although he may not be a countryman of their own, but still a man who is willing to suffer in defense of that divine American principle—the right of self government. I would now wish to tender to my learned and eloquent counsel, Mr. Heron and Mr. Waters, and to my solicitor, Mr. Collins, my sincere and heartfelt thanks for the able manner in which they have conducted my defense. And now, my lords, I trust I am prepared to submit to the penalty it will be the duty of your lordships to pronounce on me. I have no more to say.

A LOVER OF TWO SISTERS.

Strange Freaks of the Tender Passion.

The passion called love sometimes causes men to play the most fantastic tricks, while its effect upon the other sex is no less strange and contrary to reason. At least we were led to draw these conclusions yesterday from hearing the story of Alfred Barling, of LaCrosse, Wisconsin, who came here in day or two ago in search of a beautiful, but fallen angel with whom he was infatuated to an extent altogether incomprehensible to less susceptible mortals. We gathered the following fragments of the history of the man's loves and sorrows, and extend to him our sincere compassion:

Some years ago Mr. Barling married a Miss Thayer, with whom he lived happily but a short time. A year ago he obtained a divorce from her, after she had borne him two interesting little pledges. The divorced wife had a sister, Emma Thayer, a beautiful girl of nineteen, with whom Carling soon fell desperately in love. Apparently, his passion was returned with equal ardor, and the two pledged their vows of love and only waited the arrival of the appointed day to become man and wife. The lovers went from LaCrosse to Bellevue, Iowa, and put up at a hotel. In anticipation of being soon united to the object of his adoration, Barling lavished his wealth upon her, decorating her with silks, and jewels, and all the gewgaws that wealth could buy. The lady's love was nourished and increased by these lavish expenditures, and she seemed as anxious as he for the arrival of the wedding day.

Before that day came, Barling had occasion to visit a neighboring town, leaving his inamorata in charge of the landlord of the Bellevue House. On his return, the landlord took him aside and breathed into his ear a tale of horror that nearly froze his blood.—A traveler had stopped at the hotel during Barling's absence, who, owing the lovely Emma moving in respectable society, informed the landlord that he had known her as an inmate of a palace of pleasure in St. Louis, kept by a Madam Mack, situated on Tenth street, between Morgan and Franklin avenue.

The lover was petrified at this disclosure, and at once broke off the engagement. According to his statement, he purchased a trunk for her and was about sending her home to her father, when she gave him the slip, and left the town, taking with her his own trunk, containing some two hundred dollars' worth of valuables. Supposing that the fair fugitive had returned to her old haunts in St. Louis, he came here on Monday last and stated his case to the police. Officer Shaw was commissioned to hunt up the deceitful Emma, and he soon found her. She had disposed of most of the valuables in her lover's trunk, and had pawned a portion of her wardrobe for fifty dollars. The officer found her on Wednesday, and by authority of Barling, offered to furnish her with money to return to her friends in Wisconsin. She refused to have anything to do with Barling, but asked him to loan her fifty dollars, promising to return home by herself.

Barling now repented of his rashness in breaking off the engagement. On examining his feelings he found that he loved her still, fallen as she was—loved her deeply, wildly, madly. His burning desire was now to make up with her and induce her to go back with him to Wisconsin. This she flatly refused to do. She had never loved him at all, and accused him of maltreating her sister. She had pretended to love him only for the purpose of supplying her wants from his purse. Yesterday morning Barling offered to send $600 to the bank in LaCrosse for Emma's use, provided she would go home, but she still refused, and remains at Madam Mack's, leading a life of shame. The lover is almost distracted, and lingers about the place in the fond hope that the false one will repent and go with him to her father's house in Wisconsin. He is completely infatuated, and its haunted night and day by the image of the unfaithful one, who is as cold to him as ice, and will doubtless remain so. We await further developments in this strange love chase.

EDITORIAL

SUNDAY, : : : : : : : : : JUNE 16, 1867

WHERE are BROWNLOW'S "State blackguards?" We want a regiment sent to this city immediately. We must have them. Several companies of these tattered scare crows have been mustered into service, but not one has yet been sent to Memphis. Why this insult and slight to our great city? Almost every family has either a chicken coop or a hen roost to rob. There are many old, grey headed men in this city to be bolted astride a rail, and thus toted through our streets amid the jeers and insults of the "State blackguards." There are large numbers of men here to be taken from their families and murdered in cold blood. Then why not send along the "melish?" In every county where these dirty, stinking ragamuffins have shown their unwashed faces, hundreds of votes have been made for the Conservatives. In Haywood county, where CLINGAN'S cutthroats, and rides at old, defenceless man on a rail, a glorious reaction is going on. In Franklin county, where RICKMAN murders in cold blood a peaceable and unoffending citizen, Radicalism has become a stench in the nostrils of the people. In Sullivan county where GEORGE EDGAR CARTHAN presides like a sceptered king, and orders magistrates to appear in his august presence, and to discharge their duties as he may direct, honest men are turning with disgust and loathing from a party guilty of such high handed usurpation. In Sullivan county, when these vagabonds have produced a reign of terror by deeds of insult, outlawry and rapine, thousands of votes have been made for the Conservative cause. The only thing necessary to secure an overwhelming majority in this county is to get the "State blackguards" in our midst. We beg, beseech, implore and entreat BROWNLOW to send them along. If he can not spare a regiment, battalion or company, please send a squad. Memphis pays a large proportion of the taxes which feed BROWNLOW and the Radical gang who are sucking from the public teat, and she asks as a recompense for this generosity that she be furnished with her pro rata share of the "melish." Our people are anxious to see how drilled soldiers look in a time of profound peace. Send the "melish" along, and let us have the "pomp and circumstance of glorious war." Let us hear "the squeak of the wry-necked fife" and the trumpet's bray, send along the "melish!" America has her spoon stealing Beast BUTLER; Austria had her woman whipping HAYNAU; the Huns had their ATTILA; Brownsville has her rail riding CLINGAN; Franklin has her murderous RICKMAN; and why not send a NERO or a CALIGULA to Memphis? We must have the "State blackguards" marching up and down Main street with the stately tread of an octegenarian or a rickety child. Can't our citizens get up a sham riot or a mock fight? Can't somebody be induced to fling to the breeze the same rebel flag that fluttered over little General SMITH'S house? Won't some brave fellow mount the steed which BEAUMONT rode while a Confederate soldier, and "cry havoc and let slip the dogs war?" Can't a few old women be induced to appear upon the streets armed with broomsticks, and to threaten vengeance against the "melish?" The loud croaking of the bull-frogs in the swamps across the river are interpreted as meaning war upon BROWNLOW'S despotism. So the "melish" must move down upon Memphis. This county must be carried for the Radicals, and to accomplish this the hen thieves, the murderers, and the facetious young men who beguile their ample leisure by riding old citizens on rails, must come in our midst and amuse themselves with their usual pastime. The peril is imminent! The rebellious indications are sufficiently threatening. General FORREST has several hundred laborers just across the river, all armed with spades and pickaxes. Some people are foolish enough to believe that he is building a railroad, but a regiment should be stationed at the river to watch his movements. Admiral SEMMES was seen upon the steamer Commercial a few days ago looking very mysteriously at the flag staff of that splendid and popular boat, and who knows but what he intends to make a cruise up the Cumberland and Tennessee rivers? General PIKE has been smoking with unusual fervor of late, and while gently dozing he has been heard to give commands in an unknown language, and if the "melish" do not rush to the rescue, he will soon have the city stormed by a Civic Guard of Cherokee, Seminole and Choctaw Indians.

The indications in the country are still more threatening. General BEN. HILL tells us of the slaughter going on in Middle Tennessee between the Radicals and the Conservatives. We know of a country rebel, who is still defiant and unconquered. He has a neighbor who is a Radical partisan, and who spends nearly all his time in attending political meetings and in instilling poison into the mind of the negro. This sort of conduct greatly outraged the rebel, and, in a moment of desperation, he seized his ax, rushed frantically to the woods and there cut and split two hundred rails, to supply the place of those burned by the Federal soldiers. When it was announced that Carthage was to be burned, the women in the terrible emergency made ropes out of the hair upon their heads to be used by the soldiery. In the great work before them, the Conservatives are showing the same sort of patriotic zeal, for we are told that ten thousand of them are busily engaged in burnishing up their scythe blades, and in a few days we would not be at all surprised to hear that they had swept down whole fields of waving wheat. All these things indicate that the rebels are determined to do something, and to prevent such an awful catastrophe this army of hen theives, rail riders and murderers must be increased.

We congratulate the lovers of sport in Memphis upon the good fortune which has favored our city, in selecting it as the scene of the contest for the first great "South and West Turf Congress Post Stake," which is to be run for in the fall, some time in the early part of October. We learn from the Turf, Field and Farm that, at the Turf Congress at Louisville, there were eight clubs represented. A "South and West Turf Congress Post Stake" (four mile heats) will be run for annually in the fall, except the Mobile and Orleans, when it will be run for in the spring. Each club is required to make an entry of two hundred and fifty dollars to name at the post. The course is to give one thousand dollars; the stake will be worth, with the present organization, three thousand dollars. The Congress drew lots to decide where to commence. Memphis got the first draw, New Orleans second, Louisville third, Lexington fourth, St. Louis fifth, Cincinnati sixth, Mobile seventh and Nashville eighth. A whip, mounted with gold, with diamond set, value a hundred dollars, is to be held by the club whose entry wins the first Congress stake. The next winner takes it, and so on until some one of the club takes it twice; it will then be the property of the club. Here will be a race worth all the other races of the year. Think of it—eight of the best in the land in a four mile heat race together! The race is to be managed and controlled by the officers of the Turf Congress, who will judge, etc. Each club will regulate its own affairs, excepting a few general rules agreed on by the Congress. Messrs. VILAS, WOOD, BUFORD and ALEXANDER form the committee to meet at Lexington and put the business in shape, when it will be published. Just think of eight of the most prominent clubs in the country interested in this contest, and the galaxy of fine horses and crowd that will be present can scarcely be estimated. At all events, it promises to be the greatest meeting ever held in the Southwest, and our people should go to work at once to improve the track and add to the accommodations, so as to make them worthy of the crowd of strangers that will attend and the noble animals that will be present to contest for the prize and distinction.

We had the pleasure of meeting, on yesterday our esteemed friend, the Hon. WM. G. SWAN, during the war a distinguished member of the Confederate Congress from the Knoxville district in this State, and before it a leading member of the bar and a former reporter of the Supreme Court of the State. He has located in Memphis to practice his profession, and we congratulate our people upon his addition to us.

The Nashville Union and Dispatch, referring to the reported arrest by Brownlow of his militia Captain, Rickman, head of the murdering militia company stationed in Franklin county, says: "As yet we have heard of no arrests—no turning over of the murderers of Brown to the civil authorities—no dismissal of the officers from the State service—and no general order reprehending the disorder on the part of the militia."

Judge Wylie again presided in the Criminal Court, Judge Fisher being still too ill. Mr. Carrington submitted his objections to further proceedings to-day, on the ground that his term ends on Monday next, and that the judge who is obliged to hold the present term is sick, and is not present, and was present on Thursday last, and that another judge (to-wit: Judge Carter) is assigned to the next term of this Criminal Court, so that the commencement of empanneling the jury was by Judge Fisher. It is admitted by the District Attorney to be illegal, to proceed before Judge Wylie to complete the empanneling of the jury in the case. The Court overruled the objections, and Mr. Carrington accepted the ruling.

The examination of the talesmen then proceeded, and finally a full jury was obtained, as follows:

THE SOUTHERN ASYLUM.

The Results of the Drawing Yesterday.

There was a large crowd in Hernando yesterday, gathered to witness the results of the first experimental drawing of the Southern Asylum Land Lottery. There was no ad captandum display of "grand prizes," and no flaming placards. This drawing was designed simply to illustrate the modus operandi of the institution. The company owns its chartered privileges to the State of Mississippi, and of necessity, in this first drawing, the company must needs distribute a share of Mississippi property. As we are advised, the company provided against all possible fault-finding. Mississippians can not complain that, of property represented in this scheme, they did not sell in proportion to tickets they have purchased. Two lots in each of the thirteen prizes in Corinth, and fifty acres in Hernando, gave to Mississippi one-third of the money that came into the treasury of the company. Hernando is a suburb of Memphis, twenty miles away. The lots distributed in Corinth are each one hundred by two hundred feet. R. C. Brinkley, of this city, gave three thousand dollars for the block which the Asylum raffled off at two thousand dollars.

The Holmes property distributed adjoins the farm of Major Lee, near the residence of the late Governor Jones. Major Lee gave $300 per acre for his property. The company sold the same property at $200.

The lottinary drawing of the Asylum yesterday was a success in more senses than one. In addition to putting in motion the machinery of the institution, it was rendered prima facie satisfactory in its operations to the numerous purchasers of tickets who were present to witness the procedure. At about noon the wheels and tickets were placed in charge of a committee of disinterested individuals composed of the following gentlemen: Robert Temple, Chairman; J. B. Morgan, Val. H. Merriweather, W. M. Compton, John Ainslie, and J. M. Hall. A suitable hall in the village having been selected, the above gentlemen repaired thereto, immediately upon the arrival of the 10:30 train from Memphis, and began to "turn the wheel of fortune." The drawing continued until about five o'clock p.m., when the following were announced as the lucky numbers drawing the forty-seven prizes in the wheel, viz:

4426—3256—9780—5709—8067—3247—210—334—5397—1594—1713—8284—8019—9494—9832—4300—9909—9054—3015—106—9780—1532—1054—8575—6008—9046—5128—187—3108—1681—336—1479—5702—1791—3418—1511—3044—9007—2002—2506—4186—5001—9040—8433—9850—2866—3550.

The following testimonial certifies to the business of the drawing:

HERNANDO, MISS., June 15, 1867.

We hereby certify that the above report of the first drawing of the Southern Asylum is correct, and that the proceedings were characterized by a spirit of fairness and justness unsurpassed in any drawing of which we have any knowledge. The managers of the company placed the tickets and wheels under our sole management and control.

ROBT. TEMPLE, Chairman.
J. B. MORGAN
VAL. H. MERRIWEATHER,
W. M. CAMPBELL, M. D.,
M. MAGEVENEY, JR.
JOHN AINSLIE,
J. M. HALL, Clerk.

The deeds to the property drawn await the signatures of the drawers of the lucky tickets, at the office of the Asylum in this city.

A Praiseworthy Gift—Correspondence.

We give place, with as much satisfaction as we ever did anything in our lives, to the subjoined correspondence. We trust the noble example set by Mr. Lenow will be followed by others, and we do not know any better trustee for the disposition of such a charge that the distinguished gentleman designated by Mr. Lenow. Without consulting him, we know from his strong sympathy for so exalted a purpose of charity, that he will not decline:

MEMPHIS, June 15, 1867.

General N. B. Forrest:

DEAR SIR—I inclose my check for $100, which I ask the favor of you to divide out to the most needy widows of Confederate soldiers.

Very truly yours, JOS. LENOW.

I called at your office yesterday, but did not find you in.

MEMPHIS, June 15, 1867.

MY DEAR SIR—I had the satisfaction of receiving your note of this date, inclosing $100, to be distributed among the most needy widows of Confederate soldiers. I shall take pleasure in discharging the trust you have confided to me, and shall so distribute it as to best serve the noble purpose your generous communication has in view.

Your obedient servant, N. B. FORREST.

Southern Asylum—A Card from Rev. J. W. Rogers.

Having procured a charter for this institution, (which provides that ten per cent of all gross sales of realty shall be appropriated to the Asylum for Confederate widows and orphans,) I am continually receiving letters on the subject and adopt this method of answering them.

The original corporators turned it over, with my consent, to a number of capitalists, who elected General Frank C. Armstrong, a distinguished soldier of the Confederacy, President, and I have nothing whatever to do with its management. It seems to have proven, thus far, a great success, but I am in no way responsible, for an institution, with the management of which I have no connection whatever, and all letters should be directed to its officers. J. W. ROGERS.

RAILROAD EXCURSION AND PICNIC ON THE FOURTH OF JULY, FOR THE ORPHANS.—We take pleasure in learning that arrangements have been made for a grand picnic at Bartlett's station, on the Memphis and Ohio railroad, for the 4th of July. The proceeds will be contributed to the support of the needy orphans. Bartlett's station affords one of the most delightful picnic grounds in the country. To afford every one an opportunity of going, tickets for the round trip on the railroad will be issued for the small sum of one dollar. Let every one who wishes to enjoy the day and contribute to a great charity, spend the Fourth at Bartlett's station.

THE GREAT WILDER REMEDIES—THEIR REMARKABLE SUCCESS.—The Wilder remedies are attracting great attention among medical men and with the public. They are specific cures for specific diseases, antidotes to, mortific, poisons, remedies that produce no bad effects, medicines that touch the disease and not the patient. They are infallible remedies for diseases of the stomach and liver, they improve the digestion, they regulate the bowels, they eradicate all traces of malarious or of syphilitic poison. They are not gotten up and sold as a speculation, but the proceeds of their sale is devoted to charity. Thousands of persons have tried them and have attested the wonderful curative powers that they possess. Wherever they are once tried they become indispensable to every family. Physicians who are puzzled, sore for, or in groping for the proper mode of blistering, purging or purging the patient, these milder remedies restore the patient to health and vigor. Many dyspeptics who have tested the Wilder remedies now rely upon them in all those cases where their proprietor indicates their fitness.

It is not often a medicine is sold and the proceeds given in charity. It is not often that a patent medicine comes fully up to what its originator promises. It is natural that he should be biased in favor of his own. But the Wilder remedies are popular with all who use them. They deserve to be so; for we know by seeing them used in many cases, that they are all that their proprietor claims.

At this season of the year, when the nervous system is relaxed, and all suffer more or less from the debility and prostration caused by the excessively warm weather, the blood naturally becomes, to a greater or less degree, impure, and requires some gentle tonic, and also an alterative and blood purifier, is imperatively necessary to counteract the miasmatous and corrupting tendencies of the summer heat, and to restore the system to vigor and health. For this purpose nothing is so highly recommended or better adapted than Wilder's preparations, which are advertised in another column. They are prepared on scientific principles by an old resident of the South, who has watched the causes and progress of diseases incident to a Southern climate for a quarter of a century, and these remedies are the result of his experience as to the successful treatment of the diseases for which they are recommended.

They are only sold by Messrs. Ward & Leguerre, corner of Main and Adams streets, to whom we commend diseased persons.

ATTEMPTS TO MURDER.

Blacks Who Dare to Expose Demagogues to be Assassinated.

A few days since we published in our advertising columns a card from a very respectable colored man named A. N. Thomas. He exposed the meanness and mendacity with which he had been treated, and the trickery resorted to to prevent colored persons hearing Conservative speakers. This card reflected on Ham. Carter, the aged pigeon of certain Radical demagogues, and this it seems so much excited those referred to, that they have attempted to murder Thomas. He was sitting on his own stoop yesterday, when Carter and four other persons came at him—struck him a dangerous blow in the face with some weapon and tried to shoot him. He is a brave fellow, but was entirely unarmed, and was luckily able to effect his escape. When passing through Jefferson street, yesterday afternoon, he was again assaulted by other parties, and it is supposed that in revenge for his exposures, his death has been planned in midnight clubs, organized by Radical leaders. It will be remembered that a short time since we, on the information of several respectable colored barbers, stated that oaths to murder blacks who dared to go against the Brownlow villains were administered in midnight clubs.

Since writing the above we learn that the house in which Mr. Thomas lives has been prowled about night after night for chances to assassinate him.

We hope this accusation will be promptly brought before the bar of justice. Even Brownlow Courts would outrage public opinion if they failed to punish deliberate attempts to assassinate. Can reckless white men incite their colored dupes to murder, and the law take no cognizance of it. Let Carter and his murderous accomplices be arrested and indicted for this attempt to murder—this diabolical effort to carry out bloody oaths. Will the Brownlow police arrest Carter and his accomplices? Will justice laugh at such attempts at assassination, planned in midnight clubs and pursued for weeks, and only failing by accident?

Thomas says nothing in reference to his case, but the circumstances indicate enough, and perhaps he fears that the same scoundrelism which would attempt his life might try to do some other injury, but the law must be made to protect this colored man in his rights.

Good rooms, well furnished and ventilated, can be obtained by application at the Southern Hotel office. Rents moderate.

LACE POINTS.—CONTINUED SALE.—The ladies are invited to examine the lace points of Menken Bros., as it is the intention of the house to rather sacrifice them than carry them over. Any lady wanting a real fine point, at about half price, should look at these goods.

WHAT SOME BLACKS EXPECT.

They are to be Paid for Every Time They Vote.

One of our Aldermen states that, one day, while the registration of colored voters was going on, he was present when two colored men came in for their papers. One got them and retired without remark. The other stood about as if waiting for something. "You have your papers, what do you want now?" was asked by some one. "Well, you see, boss, dey charged me a dollar to go into de 'sixty, de oder day, an' told me when I voted I should get a dollar back every time, and I wants my dollar now." He was very unceremoniously told to leave, while the Alderman laughed at the circumstance. Can it be that blacks are to be invigorated into midnight clubs, and money levied on them, and a dollar promised to them every time they vote for Brownlow?

THE CUMBERLAND CHURCH FESTIVAL.

A Very Deserving Affair.

When four thousand Confederate soldiers, broken down, dispirited, without clothing or shoes, famishing, and without money to buy a night's lodging, the Cumberland Presbyterian church was generously granted to a noble charity that was organized to clothe and send to their homes those heroic but most miserable men. The ladies of the Cumberland Presbyterian church were among the most devoted of the angel women who carried forward that most disinterested charity, and lavished their time and energies and money in the good cause. Those women now have gotten up a raspberry festival in the basement of their church on Court street. This church is the only shelter of four thousand starving and homeless soldiers. They have made very pretty, tasteful arrangements, and they ask the patronage of the public to raise means to pay for completing and fitting up the church. The festival will have no costly features, no demands for large outlays of money, but it will be what it purports, a raspberry festival where, by spending a trifle, all can aid a good cause. Certainly this church and its women are deserving of liberal patronage.

The festival will open this evening and continue every evening during the week.

THE NICOLSON TRIUMPHANT.—We notice by proclamation of Mayor Lofland that the voters are called upon to vote for or against the issuance of city bonds in order to fund the city debt and Nicolsonize some of the principal streets of Memphis. The ruin on Saturday morning, we think, furnishes a good argument in favor of the Nicolson—and we perhaps the 25th inst. in Odd Fellows' Building. J. H. Lowenstine & Bros., are selling at retail, at less than New York cost, their immense stock of dry goods, notions, clothing, boots and shoes, hats, etc. Refreshments in the grocery line in the house would especially call the attention of those in need of these articles, as their stock is first class and is being sold at marvelous low prices. Take our advice—call on them for extreme cheap goods.

J. H. MCCLURE ARCHITECT AND ENGINEER, STILLMAN BLOCK.—Our friend McClure, so favorably known to the people of Memphis as the late City Engineer, an office which he discharged with so much of real ability to the public satisfaction, can be found in the Stillman Block, where his good taste as an architect, and his knowledge of every character of edifice on short notice, and where he will answer any call that may be made for the services of a civil engineer.

CHANCERY COURT.—The following cases were disposed of as below, on Saturday:

Bedloe et al vs Thias et al, sale confirmed.
Depreister vs Depreister et al, decree vesting title.
Cook vs Jones et al, decree vs garnishee.
Depreister vs Depreister et al, decree.
Merriman vs Chancellor et al, final decree.
Fought et al vs Morgan et al, injunction dissolved.
Morton et al vs Morton et al, injunction dissolved.
Baxter vs Crofford, et al, decree for complainant.
Mayor and Aldermen of Memphis vs Thos Fowler.

This case was heard upon motion to dissolve the injunction heretofore issued to restrain defendants from the sale of Mississippi and Tennessee railroad bonds, claimed to be owned by complainants. Ordered by the court that the injunction be dissolved.

Monday, June 17, the hearing docket will be taken up at No. 200, and called to No. 200. Court convenes at nine o'clock a.m.

"I can not spare the money to insure my life; it takes all I can make to support my family;" "to you, with all of your energies, are hardly able to support your family, what would become of them were you to die?" Call on Owen, Moore & West, agents for the Mutual Life Insurance Company, and they will make the payments suit the stringency of the money market. Office 221½ Madison street, Memphis, Tenn.

No humbug—our entire stock at less than Eastern cost. See Elsons' advertisement.

THE DRUIDS OF MEMPHIS.—There will be a picnic and pleasure ride given by the Druids of Memphis on Monday. It will be worthy of that excellent order, and we comprises several hundred of our citizens among its members. The grounds on Vance street, is the place selected for the festival, which will be eminently social and pleasant affairs.

PERSONAL.—We had the pleasure of meeting yesterday our friend Col. Chas. W. Poulson, general agent for many of our leading lines of railroad. He has just returned from California via Omaha, and reports all right on the plains. This energetic railroad agent has been appointed Superintendent of Overland Telegraph. We do not remember ever to have met a more genial and clever business gentleman. He left yesterday for New Orleans, thence to Philadelphia and New York, from whence he will return to his many duties. We wish him the greatest success—a result his fine business qualities will always insure. Accompanying him was Charles A. Stetson, Esq., an estimable young gentleman, who spends a little of his time upon the "Southern poor." And we are happy to say Memphis people are too true to the relics of those who gave their all for the "Lost Cause," to obstruct in any way so fine an entertainment likely to interfere with this noble charity.

Let us see a house full to hear Chalmers and the dashing young pianist who has agreed to declaim a thrilling selection.

REMOVAL OF THE REMAINS OF W. R. SMITH.—The remains of this lamented citizen and Brother Mason, will be removed from the vault of Winchester Cemetery to their final resting place in the Cemetery, to-day at four p.m. The ceremonies will be conducted by the Masonic fraternity, of which he was an honorable member. Wm. R. Smith was one of the old landmarks of our city. Honest, energetic and enthusiastic, filled with impulse and generous emotions, he was a useful citizen, and in all the relations of life, as father and friend, companion and acquaintance, he occupied an enviable position in our home circles.

MUNICIPAL COURT.—The criminal cases set for Monday will be taken up in regular order. The May term, law side, will adjourn on Monday, to court in course.

INTERESTING.

The colored boys have now ten base ball clubs.

Green fruit is sickening many children.

The house of Mrs. Hopkins, on Beale street, was slightly damaged by fire.

Ed. Hart, a little boy, was drowned in the bayou on Friday.

John Hart is charged with stealing boots from John Woods.

Burglars robbed the house of Mrs. Hankins of a revolver, a pair of pistols and $100.

Henry Fisher, colored, is charged with stealing horses.

Catfish steaks now sell in our market at ten cents a pound.

There are eleven mackerel boys in jail at this time.

The saloon of the Shelby House has been robbed by burglars to amount of $40.

A ball being driven through Main street gored a horse attached to a street car badly yesterday.

The Dixie and Fenian base ball clubs play a match game this afternoon.

Quite a number of persons were up yesterday on charges of larceny.

The Eagle and Confederate Base Ball clubs will play a match on next Wednesday.

Monday will be the anniversary of the battle of Bunker's Hill, and Tuesday the anniversary of the battle of Waterloo.

It is stated that urgent appeals have been made in the North for money to enable the Radicals to carry Tennessee.

To-day is Trinity Sunday, and will be duly honored by services of unusual interest in St. Peter's and other churches.

It is reported that the hands in the brick yards either have struck or are about to strike for higher wages.

A gentleman who grew a lot of strawberries near Raleigh this year, sold them all on the ground at one dollar a quart.

An engine at the saw mill of Harder & Co. exploded yesterday, and badly burned a negro fireman named Bill Watts.

The ladies of the Cumberland Presbyterian church propose having a nice modest, quiet, social, no voting, raspberry festival next week, to raise a small sum of money to pay for recent church improvements.

On a recent occasion, a Radical orator, in his perambulation, by way of excuse for speaking his speech, said he "wanted to do God a favor." This was certainly a patronizing way of putting it.

A piece of property belonging to orphans that was sold at a United States tax sale for $31, was since sold for $5,700. Would any court in Christendom consider this equity.

Judge W. M. Smith yesterday dissolved the injunction restraining the sale of Mississippi and Tennessee railroad bonds to satisfy judgments against the city.

The falling of a part of the bluff opposite Vance street, caused the death of a colored child whose parents are named Roach. Two other children were partly covered by the earth, but were gotten out alive.

The devil seems to have gotten among the porters, or, rather, chance has brought to light, just at this time, a great number of larcenies by such persons. Sussman, Meyer & Co., B. Lowenstine & Bro., and Schloss & Bro. have been among the victims.

A negro named Hord, charged with larceny, broke from the officers who arrested him, was pursued to the fair ground and back to near the Bayou on Union street, where he made fight with the officers who pursued him. Five shots were fired, but nobody was hurt. Hord hit the officers, and they finally mastered him and took him to the police station, where the prosecutor declined to press the charges.

W. P. Hepburn, the Brownlowite candidate for member of the Legislature from this district, is said to be now at home in Iowa, working like a beaver for a nomination for Congress, or something else. If he gets a nomination in Iowa, he will not press his claims here, unless the elections come off so far apart that he can try his chance in both places. Under these circumstances, Messrs. Coleman and Able, can't be certain whether they will have to encounter his opposition or not.

There is a really fine band, under Professor Miller, performing every evening at Magnolia Garden, but the weather has been unfavorable, and so few persons can be about enjoying first rate music, unless it is the fashion to do so, that the receipts do not begin to cover expenses. If our citizens desire to have creditable performances continued during the summer, they should liberally patronize Magnolia Garden liberally, or get up a subscription to hire this first class band to play on several evenings every week in Court Square.

The Election Yesterday.

The following was the vote cast yesterday:

NO. 6 ENGINE HOUSE.

For bonds	260

It is thus seen that the bonds are authorized.

CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH.—The pastor, Dr. Ford, will preach at the Tabernacle this day at 11 a.m. and at 8¼ p.m.; services commencing promptly at the hour.

NEW MEMPHIS THEATRE TABLEAUX.—Mrs. Thompson is actively engaged in preparing the magnificent entertainment of tableaux, concerts, etc., that has been promised to be the finest and grandest affair of the amusement season in this city. Friday last a meeting of the parties who are engaged was held in the theater, and a very enthusiastic party was present. The roles of the different characters were appointed, and from our own personal observation we can assure the expectant public that splendid selections have been made. The ladies who will appear in the scenes are beautiful, graceful and very charming. Their costumes will be very elegant, and under the careful disposition of Mrs. Thompson, the groups in the handsomely selected pictures will prove more acceptable and attractive than any exhibition of the kind that has been presented here in a long time. There will be a rehearsal on Tuesday morning next, at ten o'clock, when it is desired that every one on the lists will be present.

ALEX'S, 280 MAIN STREET, BETHEL'S BLOCK.—This old Memphian, and the caterer of all that is good and delicious in the shape of straight and mixed fluids, is now in receipt, through those famous importers, D. J. Sessums & Co., and the French house of Dumas & Co., of Lyons, of the choicest collections of pure liquors ever introduced into our city. Alex sells none but pure liquors at 280 Bethel's Block, headquarters of the Beale street fun, and all good fellows—citizens and strangers generally.

VERY FINE PICTURES.—The famous photograph gallery in the marble building, corner of Main and Madison streets, is, even in these dull times, thronged with persons who want pictures that can't be beaten. That is the kind B. Bingham, who now manages that gallery, always has on hand, gratified that he is there, and is patronized fairly, though not so well as some of his inimitable pictures deserve.

FANNY THURSTON.—Will you vote for "Fanny" on Monday night? If so, then you will go to the "Tabernacle," to contribute your fifty cents to the fund for the "Widows and orphans of Confederate soldiers," and receive in return for such fold more than its worth in the satisfaction of knowing you have done an act which will bring comfort and blessings to the needy families of our poor dead heroes, besides hearing one of the most gifted orators in the South, and encouraging a laudable effort to establish a class of entertainment than we have heretofore had in Memphis. The uniform inclemency of the weather for months back every night appointed for the Fanny Thurston lecture, has excited general remark, and the greatest perseverance has been required to sustain them on this account; but we are happy to say they are now on a sure footing, and too popular to be otherwise than a success.

To have an entertainment on Tuesday night which could just as well be given any other night, now that it is understood that the Confederate widows and orphans claim that day only that is the only one in the week, excites the general inquiry at once as to the origin of the hostility of the person thus offering an indecent to their young people in times like these, upon the "Southern poor." And we are happy to say Memphis people are too true to the relics of those who gave their all for the "Lost Cause," to obstruct in any way so fine an entertainment likely to interfere with this noble charity.

PRAYER OF THE SOUTH.

BY THE REV. A. J. RYAN, AUTHOR OF "THE CONQUERED BANNER."

My brow is bent beneath a heavy rod!
My deep is wan and white with many woes,
Dark, dull the sky, cold, chained hands to God,
And for my sin-stained past, and present lowly life,
Bends the head of me, the Land of Sorrows!
I kneel—and, weeping for each stain, I kneel and
I turn my gaze to my own sacred cross,
And pray, Oh! Father, may Thy will be done!

My heart is filled with anguish, deep and vast;
My hopes are buried with my children's dead!
My eyes have shed—my tears are flowing fast—
My soul is full of Passion, and I kneel!
All I could, I—Father, love and cling,
When I was happy, proud, and free;
But, conquered now, and crushed, I look aloft,
And pray to Thee, Father, look on Thee.

And the wrecks that mark the former's path,
I view while wailing o'er my glorious zone,
I will each thought of hate, each throe of Wrath,
And whisper—Father, Thy will be done.
Pity me, Father of the Desolate!
Aid, Thou! whose ear can hear the heart to hear;
Look down in mercy on my wretched fate,
And keep me, God, pure in Thy Love and Fear!

Pity me, Father! for his holy sake,
Whose broken Heart bled at the feet of Grief,
That bowed beneath the load of human sin,
Might so it be, and find a sure relief.
Oh, let it be! Mighty Father, let it be!
Or, if it Night, without To-morrow's sight
Oh, Father! almost while my prayer is said,
And tender head, a pray Thy will be done!

My homes are joyless, and a million moans
Where many mothers bless their broken hearts;
Where many wail for their dear sons, and sons;
Where many mingle but cease to left to mourn;
And fill the orphan's cry, and widow's wail
As it morning hymns and vesper chant to me;
And glorious—Father, with my prayer to Thee.

Beneath our feet—ten thousand children dead!
Oh! how the cruel hearts and minions can!
Above their cold, beautiful grave mantled!
And mother—Father! till Thy will be done.
Ah, Father! bless that deck thy own loved land
With all bright Charms and beautiful and fair;
Its former—cause, and with a noble race
Spread cult, wreck and desolation there.

Girdled with gloom—of all my fellow-men
And garnished—weight gold, and with sorrow worn,
And torn my face, with tears as it was and worn,
To crutch one mite of pity from my God.
Around me blight, where oh before was bloom!
And—and—and nothing won;
Shall fob—that I can lean on wreck and tomb,
And weep—and weeping pray—Thy will be done.

And oh! the hand is red, and the river—
The words are bitter, but they hold a balm;
A balm that heals the wounds of my distress,
And turn my sorrow into holy calm,
It is the prayer of Prayers—and how it brings,
When heard in heaven, peace and hope to me;
When Jesus prayed, oh! not angels' wings
Obtained "not the fortune of Gethsemane?

My children, Father, Thy forgiveness need!
Alas! their hearts have only place for tears;
Forgive them, Father, every wrongful deed,
And every sin of every fleeting hour.
And grow the canker-worm in their heart,
And their bright lips clinch their Calvary with their Cross,
And while they clinch their Calvary with their Cross,
Oh! help them, Father, to endure its weight.

And for my Dead, my Father, may I pray?
Ah! sighs may sustain, but prayers shall soothe me more!
I weep—and weeping pray—Thy will be done!
Oh! rest their souls, thy Father, I implore!
For one my love—my love—my love—my love—my love—
Forgive them all the tears they made me shed!
Forgive them all the noblest sons they slew!
Forgive them—though my noblest sons they slew!
And bless them—though they curse my poor dear Dead!

Oh! may my woes be cloth a carrier dove
With swift, white wings, that, bathing in my tears,
Will bear Thee, Father, all my prayers of love,
And bring Thee peace in all my troubles and fears.
And bless and bless me, my Father! I know my prayer!
Pity and pardon—Father! hear my prayer!

ARTEMUS WARD.

A Hitherto Unpublished Letter.

In the "Savage Club papers" is given the following letter, by "Artemus Ward." He says:

I was sitting in the bar, quietly smoking a frugal pipe, when two middled aged and stern looking females and a young and pretty female suddenly entered the room. They were accompanied by two umbrellers and a negro gentleman. "Do you feel for the down-trodden?" said one of the females, a thin faced and sharp voiced person in green spectacles. "Do I feel for it?" answered the lan'lord, in a puzzled voice. "Do I feel for it?" "Insomuch as to which?" said the lan'lord. "You see this man?" said the female, pintin' her umbrellar at the negro gentleman. "Yes, marm, I see him." "Yes!" said the female raisin' her voice to an exceedingly high pitch "you see him, and he's your brother!" "No I'm darned if he is!" said the lan'lord, hastily retreatin a few paces. "Down-trodden!" shouted the excited female, addressin me. "He is also your brother." "No I think not marm," I pleasantly replied. "The sternest we come to that color in our family was in the case of my brother John. He had the Janders sev'ral years, but they finally left him. I am happy to state that, at this present time, he has a wooltary hi-ander." "Look at this man!" screamed the female. I looked at him. He was an able bodied man, well dressed, comfortable looking negro. He looked as though he might heave two or three good meals a day into him without a murmur. "Look at that down trodden man!" cried the female, pintin' her finger at me. I inquired, "Is he married?" "Well" said the lan'lord, "Why don't you go to the willins about it? Why do you come here about it, tellin us niggers is our brothers, and brandishin your umbrellas round like a lot of lunatics? You're wus than the 'spirit-rappers.'" "Have you," said a middled aged female No 2, who was a quieter sort of person, "have you no sentiment—no poetry in your soul—no love for the beautiful? Dost never go into the green fields, to cull the beautiful flowers?" "I not only never dost," said the lan'lord, in an angry voice, "but I'll bet you five pound you can't bring a man as dare say I dust." "The little bird!" continued the female "does not love to gaze on them?" "If so-ah I were a bird, that I might fly to thou?" I humourously sang, casting a sweet glance at the pretty young woman. "Then you look in that way at my dawter," said female No 1, in a violent voice; "you're old enough to be her father!" "Twas an innocent look I bear madam," I softly said "You behold in me an emblem of innocence and purity. In fact, I start for Rome by the first train to-morror, to sit as a model to the celebrated artist, who is about to sculp a statue, to be called Sweet Innocence. Do you s'pose a sculptor would send for me for that purpose unless he know'd I was overflowin' with innocency?" "Don't make an error about me," said the female, "that you're a scoffer and a wretch!" Your mind is in a wussser beclouded state than the poor negroes we are seeking to aid. Sir, you are agroper in the dark cellar of sin!"

Here is a sparkling font.

"No; you will not come and drink." "Yes he will," said the lan'lord "If you'll treat Jess try him." "As for you" said the enraged female to the landlord, "you're a degraded bein, to low and vulgar to talk to!" "This is the sparklin fount for me, dear sister" cried the lan'lord, drawing and drinking a mug of beer. Having uttered which gosk, he gave a low rumblin laf, and relaxed into silence. The colored female said to the negro kindly, "what is it all about?" He said they was tryin to raise money to send missionaries to the Southern States in America to preach to the vast number of negroes recently made free there. He said they were without the gospel. They were without meats. I said, "why free"; this is a serious matter. I admire you for tryin to help the race to which you belong, and far be it from me to say anything agin carryin the gospel among the blacks of the South. Let the gospel go to them by all means. But I happen to individually know that they are sonze thousands of likewise blacks in the South: who are starvin. I don't blame anybody for this, but it is a very sad fact. Some are really too ill to work, some can't get work to do, and others are too foolish to see any necessity for workin. I was down there last winter, and I observed that this class had plenty of preachin for their souls, but skurce any victiles for their stummuck. Now, if it is proposed to send flour and bacon along with the gospel, I recklon it really an excellent one. If, on the other hand, it is proposed to send preachin alone, all I can say is that it's a hard case for the niggers. If you expect a colored person to get deeply interested in a track when his stummuck is empty, you expect too much." I gave the negro as much as I could afford, and the kind hearted lan'lord did the same. I said, "Farewell," may free. I wish you well, certainly. You are now as free as the eagle. Be like him and soar. But don't attempt to convert a Ethiopian person while his stummuck yearns for vitties. And you, ladies—I hope you are ready to help the poor and unfortunate abroad." When they had gone the lan'lord said, "Come into the garden, Ward." And we went in and cutted some carrots for dinner.

THE DERBY RACE.

The London Times Account.

The Derby day in 1867 will long be remembered by all turfmen, not only for the reason of the astounding victories in the betting, but for the triumph of "Specimen," as he was derisively called only a few days since, when his chance seemed forlorn indeed. The air on the Downs from noon was as fierce piercingly raw and cold, and the holiday-makers were suggestively silent by the time they reached Epsom. In fact, the "third winter" evidently froze the general current of gayety. Beyond all doubt the Derby day of this year, as far as company was concerned, was the most dull and dispiriting on record, and the forest of umbrellas that cropped up in every direction showed that the visitors had sensibly come prepared for the worst. Spectators who stood about for many time got very chilled, and in the saddling paddock the sight of well-clad arrival of the favorites induced their hands for warmth, and thus accelerated the circulation of their blood. The first race, the Bentinck Plate, as usual, like the opening piece on boxing night, was almost totally disregarded, and was won after a desperate finish, by a head. The Derby was set for 3 o'clock, there being no fewer than thirty starters, but No. 9, "poor Plaudit," was scratched at 10-23, and his place was taken conveniently by Dislin, who was the only one not inserted in Dorling's list of probable runners. The crowd in the saddling paddock was by no means so large as on many previous occasions, and, as usual all thoughts seemed concentrated on the great favorites. Vauban, Umpa, and Distin were paraded with young John Day, and several other Danebury attaches at their sides, monopolizing almost all the attention of the spectators. Hermit, who was by himself, was almost entirely disregarded, and seemed to shiver with the cold. A few people asked "What's that?" and when informed it was Hermit, contemptuously observed "Oh!" and passed on. Though the majority of the public overlooked the Hermit, Captain Machell, Mr. Chaplin's confederate, was quietly giving instructions to Daley, who was "put on" by Captain Machell—£300 if he were one of the first three, and £3,000 if he won, to which Mr. Chaplin added £6,000 making in the whole £9,000. In the paddock nothing looked better than The Palmer, Vauban, Fitz-Ivan, and Van Amburgh. The Palmer was in superb condition. His party were wonderfully sanguine, and such was the favor for the horse that when Wells stood off his top-coat and displayed the cherry satin he was greeted with immense cheering, an incident quite unusual at Epsom. Many persons were present in the enclosure for the express purpose of inspecting the fallen Rake, but he was not in sight, while saddling and mounted on the paddock, being saddled and mounted near Sherwood's cottage. Marksman also was saddled elsewhere. Thirty horses went to the saddled elsewhere. Thirty horses went to the post, precisely the same number as in Gladiateur's years, and four more than in the past anniversary, when Lord Lyon was victorious. As usual, while the animals were "under orders" great excitement was manifested, and the preliminary canters were watched with extraordinary curiosity, the style in which the attractive chestnut Marksman galloped and the bright coats of Vauban and The Palmer eliciting general admiration, while Hermit was almost unobserved, so totally had the public mind become alienated from him by the recent market operations. When the lot got to the post three-quarters of an hour elapsed before they were dispatched on their eventful journey, but the interest attaching to the actual start was considerably marred by the delay and the biting wind, sleet and snow which swept over the downs. There were at least half a score of false starts, and there were in some degree caused by the fractiousness of D'Estourel, who exhibited some of the wild freaks of Tambour Major a few years ago, despite the reports of his improved temper. In the mean time the spectators were becoming so accustomed to the false starts that they were scarcely prepared for the tremendous shout of "They're off!" and the familiar clanking of the starting bell. From the second tremendous shout which followed it was evident that some favorite had been left at the post, and in an instant the animal was recognized in the now notorious D'Estourel, who reared up on his hind legs, and, the moment the flag was lowered, darted off in an entirely opposite direction, and actually attacked the people who were on the rails next the post. The race in its changes is fully described below. Approaching Tottenham Corner The Rake and The Palmer looked formidable, but when they had made the turn they both died away, and, being close1 in upon, their chances of success were hopeless. From the distance only Vauban, Marksman, Hermit, and Van Amburgh appeared in the struggle, and loud cheers were raised when Marksman was seen on the "Thormanby side" of the course. On reaching the hill Vauban was beaten, and Hermit won after a game and determined race. Grimshaw, evidently acting up to the letter of his instructions, which were, not to move upon his horse, which he rode with consummate patience and fine judgment. Hermit, who held his place between Vauban and Marksman, was brought out with great judgment, and ridden throughout with unsurpassed patience by J. Daley. Fordham's illluck in the great three-year-old races did not desert him on the present occasion, for he only got third, and The Rake, whose recent accident is so well known, finished tenth. Julius was never formidable after leaving the furzes. The winner (Hermit) had been one of the favorites until Monday week, since he was reported to have been tried with Mr. Chaplin's recent purchase, Rama, and to have been not only worsted, but, like The Rake, to have broken a blood vessel. He was then knocked out. To-day his owner, Mr. Chaplin, accepted 1,000 to 15, and his confederate, Captain Machell, backed him to win £10,000. Mr. Chaplin is said to have won £140,000, and Captain Machell £82,0000. Mr. Chaplin also wins the leviathan bet of £50,000 that the Hermit would beat the Palmer the first time they met, and £10,000 that Hermit beat Marksman. Sir Joseph Hawley hedged the Hermit but a few weeks ago. It is worthy of note that Custance resigned his claim upon Hermit to ride the Rake, who has turned out a great imposter. Thus ended one of the most sensational Derbys on record.

LOVE AND BLOOD.

Crime, Calamity and Retribution.

The Story of a North Mississippi Girl who Runs Away with an Overseer.

The Assassination of the Latter by the Brother of the Ruined Woman.

From the Nashville Union, June 16.

On Sunday afternoon we conversed with Esquire John Richardson, of Cold Water, North Mississippi, who passed through Nashville en route for Elizabethtown, Kentucky, where he has a married daughter residing. From him we learned the details of one of the most romantic love affairs and sanguinary denouements which has been recorded in the Southwest since the famous Beauchamp tragedy. We give the story in very nearly the words of our informant.

Before the war there lived near Coldwater a widow lady by the name of Bysom. She had several children—a son and daughter, and was reputed to be rich. When the war began the son entered the Confederate service as a Lieutenant in Colonel Kennedy's rifle regiment, leaving his mother and sister on the home place in charge of John Oglesby, a young man who left the rebel service after the first year, and assumed the duties of overseer and general manager of the Bysom plantation, to protect himself from proscription. He was of good connections, however, and a student of law—poor and rather handsome. Between him and Miss Bysom an attachment soon sprang up, which resulted in a matrimonial engagement. This the young people concealed for several months, but it came at last to the knowledge of the mother, who had conceived a dislike for Oglesby, and the course she pursued under the circumstances was a little peculiar, and, as the sequel proved, most unfortunate. She sent for the "overseer," as she persisted in styling her would be son-in-law, informed him that she was aware of his desire to marry her daughter, adding that she had no objection, that it was for the two to decide and they might suit themselves. "But," she continued, "it is right for me to tell you that you will get nothing but a wife by the arrangement—not a cent of money, nor an acre of land, nor a single negger." She then showed him the title deeds, by which it appeared that her dower embraced all of the original estate over and above the debts, amounting to nearly fifty thousand dollars, and concluded by assuring him that "she meant to live a long time, and when she died he need not expect to be any richer, for she intended to will her property to others."

On receiving this rather blunt statement, Oglesby declared that he was indifferent to moneyed considerations, did not care for expenses, and would marry the girl in spite of her lack of the "stamps."

"Very well," said the old lady, "you do it at your own risk. My overseer must not marry my daughter. You must resign your position on the place, and I give you notice that I shall notify the conscript officer that he has a chance for another soldier, as soon as you give it up."

Oglesby reflected for a moment, asked for time, and there the matter rested for several weeks. Meanwhile the war went on; news came of the battle of Murfreesboro, and with it tidings that young Bysom was terribly wounded. The mother, frantic and for the sence oblivious to every other circumstance, set out at once for the "front," leaving the plantation and the daughter to the care of the overseer, whose ambition—"imperidence," as she called it—she vainly imagined she had quelled. But she mistook her man. Three days after she left, a party of Federal guerrillas under Dave Fauson, of Hawkins command, came into the neighborhood. Late that night the neighbors were startled by the glare of the fire from the Bysom homestead. Panic stricken and confused, they did not make an effort to save the premises or stir out of doors, and when daylight came, and a few people, more venturesome than the rest, sought the scene of the conflagration, they found a pile of ashes and smouldering embers, watched over by the negro women of the place and one old negro man.

The story told by these was that "the Yankees" had come there for supper; that Mr. Oglesby and "young missus" had entertained the officers; that about eleven o'clock these officers, accompanied by the overseer and the young lady, had left in company; that an hour or two after, a squad of men had returned and fired the houses; and indeed the "likely" ones of the negro men to go off with them.

Nothing more could be elicited, and nothing more was heard of the guerrillas or the runaway couple. When Mrs. Bysom got back with her wounded son, she found her dwelling and her daughter gone. Pursuit was impossible. The fortunes of the South were beginning to wane; the country was filling with paroled soldiers; the movements of troops, and the exhausted negroes that staid about the place attaches at their sides, monopolizing almost all the attention of the spectators. Hermit, who was by himself, was almost entirely disregarded, and seemed to shiver with the cold. A few people asked "What's that?" and when informed it was Hermit, contemptuously observed "Oh!" and passed on. Though the majority of the public overlooked the Hermit, Captain Machell, Mr. Chaplin's confederate, was quietly giving instructions to Daley, who was "put on" by Captain Machell—£300 if he were one of the first three, and £3,000 if he won, to which Mr. Chaplin added £6,000 making in the whole £9,000.
